Friends of the Jesus Revelation through the writing servant and writing prophet Jakob Lorber feel connected to all people of the world as creatures and children of one and the same Father. This Heavenly Father embodied Himself in Jesus Christ about 2,000 years ago and did not manifest Himself as Savior and Teacher until age 30, for three years. The spirit friends of the Divine Revelation recognize in this eternal declaration a new and great Word of God and aim to achieve a joyful mutual exchange.

Our friend Elke ponders a lot and sincerely about all of our father-ours. The superiors of the Catholic Church have already given thought to how the saying of Jesus "... and do not lead us into temptation" could be reconciled with a loving Father who only wants what is best for his creatures.

Does God himself lead his future children into temptation in which they then fall and sin? Shouldn't it correctly be "... and lead us into temptation"?

That would be more likely to be assumed from an almighty father and would also correspond to His care. So is God himself the tempter and then forgives the fallen for their weaknesses?

The all-too-human mind is looking for an explanation and thinks that it has to turn those words of Jesus around in order - in his opinion - to be able to understand and accept them correctly. In doing so, however, he neglects to question the spiritual meaning.

So how did Jesus really say, "not in temptation" or "in temptation"? In the faithful reproduction of the Lord's words by his servant Jakob Lorber and the following explanation, we are relieved of all doubts and scruples.

The Great Gospel of John, Part 9-210: 3 says, "When you pray to God and say in your heart, 'Father in Heaven, do not lead us into temptation!', Say, think and wish that HE DOESN'T PROVIDE YOU WELL WITH MANY EARTHY GOODS AND TREASURES, BUT ONLY ASK HIM FOR THE DAILY BREAD, HE WILL NOT WITHHOLD, AS HE KNOWS BEST OF WHAT YOU NEED!

So here too we have to find the spiritual meaning of his word, because the word is not the meaning, since the meaning is hidden in the word. 'Do not lead us into temptation' advises us not to sink into the intoxication of the material world, and not expose ourselves to the temptations of material desires, but to simply follow the path to God's kingdom.

J.P. wrote from Germany:

What was my key to accepting the New Revelation?

I was a strict Bible-believing Christian and was born in South Korea. I have lived in Germany for 30 years and had a loving mother. Everyone who knew her liked her. An example: after working in a steel company for a long time, my uncle started his own small business for the same steel company. He asked my mother if anyone was looking for a job in the neighborhood. That is the love of home. My mother recommended two boys. Later my uncle called my mother. I just need someone.

Who should I choose? Who more is needed? My mother said; how can I choose one and disappoint the other? Accept both! ". However, she had no idea how such a company works, but my uncle hired them both. Perhaps God blessed his goodwill so that he could even start two businesses of his own.

My mother had a disabled son and my older brother was always concerned about him. Since my brother tried to commit suicide twice because of constant suffering, one can imagine the suffering of our family. When she saw a building under construction through a window, she said with a sigh: If we had such a building, my son would be well fed for life. She looked everywhere for a solution. She also went to a fortune teller and asked her, "Advise me to believe in Jesus Christ before I become a Christian!" Then I spontaneously laughed at our wonderful mother. Then I just laughed that our mom had gotten weird.

But I accepted this change in my mother's favor with goodwill. She went to the Evangelical Church and on the advice of the pastor, she copied the Bible. That was a trend in South Korea back then. She said: It can't be, how can you fill 5000 people with 5 loaves of bread and 2 fish?

After I personally accepted Jesus Christ as my Savior when I prayed with her, she did not even pray for her husband, my father, but only for the 4 children, 2 boys and 2 girls. Since our family is an ancestral family, there were always ancestral sacrificial ceremonies. She went to the Catholic Church because the ancestor worship being is more considered there than in the Protestant Church, and was also given a baptismal name. She doesn't care about theology. It is about her disabled son and the loyalty to the family.

She died suddenly of a brain haemorrhage one morning, after drinking coffee. She was 61 years old. Her last word was on the phone. 'I sent you a treat. You like to give away to others. But do you eat too?' My older sister cried very sadly that she had gone to infinite hell because she was not true to her faith and because of her insecurity had gone to the fortune teller again and thereby displeased God. (Based on bible verse)

A silent question occurred to me, how a loving God can be so cruel to my loving mother. Because of His righteousness? Later I heard a sentence from an elder of a free church: ``Maybe someday we will all be saved because it is written, One day everyone will kneel before Jesus. " He then quickly withdrew his words because he did not want to be attacked. I then thought he was wrong. Because of our great age difference and the virtue of the Asians and respect for them, I was hesitant to start an altercation with him.

After my illness and then a rehabilitation clinic, I returned home and read the sentence, "God is love and wisdom!" That made my spirit bright. I always wondered how I could harmonize those two things because the Bible renders these two things in the same way: salvation is possible by grace, that is, by faith alone, and salvation also comes from works because faith alone is worthless in itself.

An English professor dictated this sentence in a scientific article; "God is love and wisdom," and both together result in usefulness. Many things can be summarized in this formula. The quote also mentioned the name "Emanuel Swedenborg".

As a result, I was able to accept Jakob Lorber, Gottfried Mayerhoffer, Bertha Dudde, Anita Wolf, the Mexican Revelation, and other prophetic writings and people as the true Word of God and true prophecy. I was overjoyed and let go of a fight, one truth against another. I'm not ready at all and even have respect for anyone who has read a prophet's scriptures in full. It took me 10 years to read the Lorber writings completely.

Bertha Dudde's writings are much easier to read. They all complement each other. The small difference will be apparent over time and will be corrected. You need patience again and again..

My younger, conscientious sister once asked someone with a prophetic gift in the church about me because she was worried about me. She was open to spiritual workings. She told me what she was told, "Don't worry about your brother. He doesn't pray much, but at least his prayer reaches heaven and God intends to use him more than you. "I said at the time: You don't need something like that, do you? This is nothing more than disguised secular fortune-telling. I was so stubborn. Outside of the Bible, there was nothing for me at the time.

Later I heard that, while visiting the spiritual world, my younger sister saw, as I suspected. our loving mother in the kingdom of heaven.Hallelujah !!!

I would like to explain one of the many reasons why I accept Jakob Lorber's writing and other writers as God's word: After the plaintive cry to God, I once had a resounding and peaceful, loving voice that I had never heard before, from the abdominal area. And I thought, how can you hear a voice from the abdominal area? In the situation at that time, an appropriate word that everyone can say was: Understand the other first instead of wanting to be understood! Since then, it has been my greatest wish to hear the Father's voice and always live with Him. For me, that was clearly the father's voice. Because Jakob Lorber constantly heard such a voice, he could do nothing else than write it down for the others and be grateful and happy.

I am longingly waiting to see my mother again. I have as many good experiences as any other person with my mother. She was strict with me because of the disabled brother. Once at school, there was a survey to grade one's own father and mother. 100 points were the highest. As a child, I immediately gave 100 points to my father. But mom spanked me yesterday, that's why I gave her 95 points. There is always a cane in our living room. Then I immediately got an uneasy conscience and immediately asked for the note again and corrected it from 95 to 100 points. Love is the key to the Bible and the new revelation. That is the extensive core term. From personal experience, I say the following: Those who are honest and ask in their hearts will get an answer from Jesus Christ.

Two announcements by Bertha Dudde about eternal damnation.

BD. No. 1137, October 15, 1939

Eternal damnation .... Nonbeing - Unredeemed ....

The Creator of Heaven and earth is inseparably united with all His creations, nothing is viable without the granting of His strength and thus this strength has to be imparted to every work of creation to sustain it. Thus all beings are in constant contact with the supreme Being and therefore the being can only take a path which is not God's will but without being able to completely separate itself from its Creator and Maker.

It will always have to call upon His use of strength, even though in the blindness of thought in the last stage of its development, it imagines itself to be independent of any power above it. The non-recognition of a power does not exclude the existence of such power. So if the being wants to separate itself from its creator, this only happens in its own thinking, in that it consciously turns its will away from the divine will .... but it can never detach itself from its creator through such thinking, because this would be synonymous as "non-existence;"

Separation is impossible, and the conscious turning away from God only has the consequence that this being does not strive for the liberation of the spirit, but prefers to remain in an unredeemed state, so as it were back to the banished form which it had already overcome .... and so the gap between the Creator and himself is widening instead of narrowing. And this decline is like eternal damnation because for the being, there are endless times of unspeakable torment .... There is no non-existence .... only unredeemed existence .... The way to salvation is for every Being passable, and all conceivable help will be given to him ...

Only the union with God has to be striven for, but not the distance from God .... God draws the beings to Himself in His infinite love, as long as they only look up to Him .... But if He finds resistance in the will of the People and His love is not accepted, the bestowal of grace also ceases; However, the supply of strength from God is still granted to him as long as the earthly path has not yet been covered. Only in the hereafter will the being which offered resistance feel the lack of divine power; it is then to a certain extent left to itself. Even then, it still has the possibility of bridging the gap, but there is also the danger of falling into endless depths if the obstinacy is so great, that even then it still rejects any help. And then the way down has been taken, which ends again in captivity .... that the being is incorporated into the solid form again and must go through the course of its higher development again through eternity until finally the separation of the creature from the eternal Creator has finally been overcome ...

Amen

Eternal damnation; .... light .... will of Lucifer? ....

B.D. No. 6420, December 9, 1955

In my kingdom, light is continuously received and emitted. The luminous flux floods continuously and blesses all beings who are sensitive to light. Their constantly increasing bliss also constantly increases their fullness of love, and so these light beings must also be continuously active because love drives them to do so. And their activity consists of shining on the light that they receive from me because they know the torment of darkness and want to help all souls to escape it .... they also spread light in the dark spheres, only there they have to find souls willing to accept who desire the light. Every willing soul receives light ...

I do not impose any other conditions than those that the soul wants its light to come to its share, to provide it richly with light, either directly or by messengers of light and love, working on My behalf. And although a soul resides in the deepest darkness, its longing for light is always followed up and this already means redemption from the darkness, because My constant concern is nevertheless aimed at the liberation of the soul from the depths, the return into My kingdom where there is light and bliss.

So do you believe that I would leave a willing soul unnoticed in the darkness? Do you believe that I would make her yearn, that I don't care if she longs to escape the darkness? You humans, are being taught of "eternal damnation." And this expression is like a judgment of an angry and punishing God, who I am not.

I am a God of love and justice. Because My righteousness must give you your share according to the condition of your soul, which is often so dreadful that only the deepest depths can be your abode, My love does everything to save you from this fate. And My love also takes you out of this darkness, if only you do not resist Me. It is resistance that prevents Me from drawing My love closer to souls, for I do not force them to be saved. But where the resistance diminishes or has been completely given up, there the ray of My love can exert its effect now, the light can flow in all its fullness and an agonizing state will be ended forever.

And now you also know that I do not want eternal damnation, that I deliver every soul that longs for liberation. For that is why I died on the cross, that this redemption - this liberation from the power of Satan - could take place, because according to divine justice, sin should keep you chained in the deep and there could be no deliverance from it eternally, when the guilt of sin would not have been nullified, precisely through the sacrifice of the cross. And this sacrifice of the cross was made for everyone... No being is excluded from it and that is why there can also be redemption from hell for the soul that wants to escape ....

And you do believe that my opponent would be excluded from this redemption? Do you believe that he too could not receive the blessing of My sacrifice on the cross, if this were his will? ...

But that he still rages against me, that he uses all means to alienate me from you humans, that he influences humanity in such a way that it has reached a state of mind that necessitates a dissolution of the earth's creations .... is a sign that his will has not yet changed, it is a sign that he is still in the strongest opposition to me, that he does not want to return to me . But he is full of deceit and what he undertakes, he always does with the intention to win the souls he thinks he is losing. For verily the change of his will would be sustained by Me through unusual radiation of love, and the work of salvation on this first fallen beings would have been successful. But this time is still endlessly far. But one day I will also win him because my love does not condemn any being forever. Amen

Answer

Dear J.P

You have shared a special and moving story with us.

For example, I found a nice quote from you: "The writings of Bertha Dudde are much easier to read. They all complement each other. The small difference will be apparent over time and will be corrected. You need patience again and again. "

I have just underlined it in black here. Yes, you mean the small difference with the quotes from Jakob Lorber and Dudde. Again yes, time will tell, which seems more nuanced to the soul. Thus we - each individually - have to walk our path to the Lord, each to his spiritual maturity. G.

Johannes from Germany.

Johannes greeted me and all of you, dear readers, because of the happy days of Jesus' resurrection. He writes: "And God's protection and blessings come over us in these troubled times. A consolation: Everything earthly has a beginning and an end, even what was done to this human race will dissolve into nothing because it was not created by God the Father only by selfish and power-hungry people, which means that evil and wrong do not have infinite endurance, although it gives everyone their own.

With best regards, Johannes

For intercession:

I want to share with you what my wife told me.

A young mother who did not yet believe in Jesus Christ, tearfully told my wife that her father committed suicide in an old home in South Korea last year. The family cared for her father at home for a while after his cerebral hemorrhage. To take better care of him, his family took him to a nursing home. Because of Corona, one was not allowed to visit anybody or very little. Her father could not cope with this situation and committed suicide out of desperation.

When she saw as a mother, her helpless first baby, she thought of her late father, who had been helpless in the home. May Father have mercy on this family, give them a good opportunity to believe Jesus' resurrection for all people at all times.

How can you give her real comfort?

Requests for strength to be given to the souls of the deceased ...

Whenever a thought of a deceased occurs to you, you know that this is always a request for help, that you can give them, because no one will take care of it. And now when they see a light with you, they would also like to meet it and be strengthened by this light, because they often do not know what that light means, especially if they have been entangled in error up to then. Then only one thought of this soul and the request to also find yourself to receive instruction and that is already sufficient. For the need is especially great for those souls who do not follow loving intercession and who should also be helped so that they come into possession of the truth.

We are constantly surrounded by souls who want to expand their knowledge to distribute it again to those who have even less knowledge and who also want to help them. And it is important now, that we tell them about the Lord's work of redemption, for only then will they also accept deeper knowledge once they have found Him and found redemption from their guilt.

The condition for this is that they first have to be active in the love since they can only get the understanding if they themselves use their will to love to help the souls [on the other side] who are in the same need. Only then they [the souls] will penetrate deeper and deeper and it will be easy for them to surrender to the Divine Savior and ask Him for the forgiveness of their guilt. But then the divine word flows steadily to them, then they also accept it no matter where and how it is commanded to them.

But only this first step is very difficult for a soul until once she has experienced the power of intercession, which is then reflected in the change of her will, which is now easier to influence, and the call to such a soul is then obeyed. That is why everyone heeds such a request and comes to the aid of the souls who are longing for help, which many people on earth remember, but find intercession only from those who can help them spiritually because they consciously cooperate with God and relate to it and He can reveal Himself to them. And every soul will be allowed to experience that His word has an enormous effect of force, which once took place with each of us because our upward development is also underway ...

If it is possible for the Lord to make Himself known to someone through the work of His Spirit, then this person is in the midst of a ray of light that attracts many souls and who are willing to accept the same that is offered to them and also receive souls by all of us in our intercession.

Because you are only driven by love for such souls, and for the sake of this love He also strengthens those for whom we pray.

The Lord must also allow applying the laws in the hereafter, which includes first of all the free will of the being, which must not be troubled, either by Himself or by His opponent. The point is that we who must also respect our free will, think only of those who are still weak; who are still weak in their will, those who cannot resist the force of intercession. The power of love touches him benevolently and that is how we can now pass the gospel of love to them.

If you knew how eagerly the followers (the souls) receive His word, how they constantly feel that they are making progress and how grateful they are to us, that through this intervention you helped them to participate in the Word. They, therefore, purify our atmosphere around us.

That is why our activity is so important because we can contribute to the salvation of many souls by offering them bread and wine, to give them the so delicious potion of life and the most effective food and we will one day feel it with inner happiness that we have been able to contribute to the ascent of those who would otherwise languish in darkness for a very long time ...

Therefore, pay attention to any thought that makes you think of a deceased person, think of it as a cry for help that you should not turn down, and then consciously call it out near you, and the first step is done. As soon as a man has interceded for such a soul, then He can also apply the power to the soul for its sake ... that can claim, but which He now sees as loving intercession. So He also gives His grace to such souls.

Answer

Dear Johannes,

Please forgive me for shortening the text and changing it slightly for the benefit of the readership. Many thanks for your helpful contribution. G.

Peace or war?

Jakob Lorber describes in GH, volume 2, in which period the human lives and will live even further: 'Others do not believe anything, do what they want and place all their trust in silver, gold and bank shares.' 'There are also people who only talk about Me enthusiastically and only praise Me when they are so enthusiastic about the wine or the beer. But when this spirit has evaporated, then I have become a very dry protector of your heart. There is no more enthusiasm, no more radiant speech and no more diamond-confidence to feel! And so here and there My Word is treated so dry as if there is sand from the Sahara desert in Africa, but besides that an extremely stupid and boring novel as a healing source - If you take the dirt for gold, but the gold, the real gold, for really dirty !? "[GH 2-47: 4-7]

Do people still have "compassion" for each other? The Lord describes the "Direction of Lovelessness" that certainly applies to our current industrial society.

The Lord: "This is just the beginning! - I have given the peoples, all the great, the powerful and the rich and all merchants, artists and traders enough time and leisure to improve themselves through the many signs, such as the small popular uprisings, minor wars, through a thousand petitions, posters and all kinds of art magazines, also due to epidemics, local famines, due to lack of money and work, but also due to hailstorms and floods. "[GH 3-48]

"I have given the earth a long peace. Then the princes slept, their ministers robbed and oppressed the people, and the people whistled and danced and forgot me, along with the princes and ministers. But I didn't sleep or oppress and really had no reason to whistle or dance; because a real father cannot rejoice when such a serious epidemic comes and kills him one child, after another. But if the plague drives his willful will long, the father can be seized only with righteous anger; And since this father is also the master of all epidemics, now is the time to crush the head of the epidemic all over Europe, yes all over the earth! "[GH3-48]

.... "Because almost everyone has written the judgment of death on their forehead. Where no one sees the need of his neighbor, where the loud lament of misery is overheard for the loud splendor of the world, there is greenery and grass with the cuckoo. That is why I think that one should no longer create special circumstances with this spiritually almost dead humanity, but let it completely die out naturally through all kinds of epidemics. Only the few good people who live scattered here and there should be saved so that through them, the earth would come back to better inhabitants. "

I say, "My dear friend, you are probably quite right; it really is misery as it looks in the world now! I tell you, much worse than in the days of Noah and Lot. But what can you do but be patient after patience? Let them all die today, they will be no better in the spirit realm than on earth. But if you let them fiddle on Earth for a while and they get really miserable at their folly, many will go back to themselves and crawl to crosses. "[RB.02_257,12,13]

'I tell you: all disasters, epidemics, all kinds of diseases among humans and animals, bad weather, lean and unproductive years, devastating hailstorms, widespread devastating floods, hurricanes, great storms, plagues of locusts and the like are merely consequences of the disorderly behavior by mankind "[GGJ4-144: 2]

If man were, as far as possible, to live within the rules of the set down ordinances, he would not have any reason to expect any of these disasters. The years would pass by like a string of pearls, each one as blessed as any other. The habitable regions on earth would never be afflicted by too much cold or too much heat. However, there are always clever and exceedingly clever people who undertake projects far in excess of their needs, for instance, by erecting buildings which are too large, or undertaking unwarranted improvements, or leveling whole mountains to construct highways to make war, or destroying hundreds of thousands of acres of the finest forest land, or digging too far into mountains to extract gold or silver or, lastly, living in continual dispute and discord with each another, while, in contrast, they are constantly surrounded by a horde of intelligent natural spirits who take responsibility for the weather as well as for the purity and wholesomeness of the air, the water and the soil on earth Is it then any wonder if this earth is visited more and more by an infinity of evils of every type and description? [GGJ4-144:3]

" So, one people will rise against another and will attack them with weapons of fire. Because of that, the rulers will come into great debts that cannot be paid off and will afflict their citizens with unaffordable high taxes. Because of that, there will be an excessively high cost of living, famine, many malicious diseases and epidemics and pestilence among the people, the animals, and even the plants."

"There will also be heavy storms on the mainland and at sea, and earthquakes, and the sea will flood its shores in many places, and then the people will come into great fear and anguish because of the expectation of the things which will then come over the Earth."

" All this will be allowed to turn the people away from their pride and their selfishness and their great laziness. The great and those who think of themselves to be mighty will be chastised with boredom and will by that be forced to come into action to free themselves from this torment. And look, this is the first kind of fire by which the people will be purified for My return." [GGJ8-185: 3-6]

CLONING – NOT TO IMITATE

Humans were cloned in December 1998, for the first time. I once had a dream and saw hundreds of men doing automatic work in a dark factory. And they all looked exactly the same. A very strange sensation, something that always stays with you from that dream ... Around the millennium, a South Korean research group declared at a specialist conference, that they had cloned a human being for the first time in the world.

The cell carries a copy of its blueprint, which is passed to the daughter cells when the cell divides. The blueprint or genetic material is then stored in the DNS, which is located in the cell nucleus

After the egg cell is fertilized by the sperm, a new living being is created that has inherited exactly half of all genes from each parent. People have long been able to isolate individual genes and insert them into bacteria, for example.

Such genetically modified bacteria can then easily be multiplied naturally as desired and, under appropriate conditions, produce the gene products encoded by the introduced genes.

Much of the insulin used in the treatment of diabetics today is made in this way. It's completely different to clone not a single gene, but an entire organism, to reproduce it artificially and not badly. This was first achieved in 1997 with the famous sheep "Dolly", which is an exact copy of another sheep.

To produce it, the nucleus of one adult sheep's cell was transferred to the fertilized egg of another, whose original nucleus had been removed. The resulting artificial cell was then divided like any other fertilized cell. It was transferred to the uterus of a female sheep and resulted in normal pregnancy and delivery. Given the close resemblance between human and animal biology, it was to be expected that sooner or later this technique would be tested on humans.

Scientists had removed an egg from a woman and removed its nucleus and replaced it with another nucleus from a body cell of the same woman. The cell was then stimulated by them to divide again, creating an embryo. After 2 divisions, when the embryo had 4 cells, the experiment was terminated and the embryo was killed.

The researchers say that their motivation is, that they actually wanted to test whether the cloning techniques, described so far only in animals such as sheep and mice, can also be applied in humans. They did not intend to artificially create a cloned human - which would have required reintroduction into a woman's womb and the prolongation of the pregnancy to birth.

The news sparked a storm of indignation in South Korea. Citizen movements formed and demanded a legal ban on such experiments, and the parliament took note of this. In addition, experts have expressed doubts about this experiment.

The researchers had indicated that they wanted to investigate whether the cloning techniques tested in animals also work in humans and concluded that this was the case from the outcome of this experiment. Without going into details, it must be said that the experiment was considered unsatisfactory because the embryo was killed after only two parts.

According to experts, it should have been kept alive longer and observed. It is hoped that this experiment will continue with this and that it will not find followers worldwide, but vigilant lawmakers who respect the commandments of God and quickly end such activities.

In Lorber, I have not yet been able to find anything about "cloning". I did read something about an "ambiguous being," which, however, is like a dual nature in a person physically, who has been cut up by nature, so that he is part man and part woman. But who can have sexual intercourse with such a man-woman, or what girl could be fertilized by such a woman-man, whose organs are not good for conceiving or to conceive ?! But if such a person also loves his well-created fellow-man and he reciprocally loves him, then he is not in conflict with love; but in the order of love, which is only fruitful ... "

Memories of Swedenborg [875]

Swedenborg writes: To this, I will add these memorabilia:

"One morning, when I awoke from sleep, I saw two angels descending from heaven, one from the south of heaven and the other from the east of heaven. Both in wagons with white horses hitched to.

The chariot in which the angel rode from the south of heaven shined as with silver, and the chariot in which the angels rode from the east of heaven shined like gold, and the reins they held in their hands glowed like the flaming light of the dawn.

So the two angels appeared to me from afar, but as they approached, they appeared not in a chariot, but in their angelic form, which is human; he who came from the east of heaven wore a shining purple robe, and he who came from the south of heaven wore a shining hyacinth robe.

When these angels were under the heavens in the lower realms, one ran up to the other, as if competing for who would be first, and they hugged and kissed each other over and over again.

I heard that those two angels had been bound together by inner friendship when they lived in the world, but that now the one was in the eastern heaven and the other in the southern heaven, in the eastern heaven they are those who are of the Lord in love, but in the southern heaven they are those who are of the Lord in wisdom.

After they had talked for some time, about the great things in their heavens, this came up during their conversation, whether heaven in its being is love or wisdom; they agreed directly in this that one is from the other, but they went on to discuss the origin, this was a point of consideration for them.

The angel who was from the heaven of wisdom asked the other what love is; and this one answered that the love that rises from the Lord as the Sun, is the warmth of the life of the angels and the people, and thus the life of them and that the distractions of love are called affections and are produced by them the insight and thus the thinking, from which it follows that wisdom from its origin is love; and so that thought is originally the affection of that love; and that one can see from the derivations, considered in their order, that thought is nothing but the form of the affection, and that one does not know this, because the thinking is in the light, but the affections are in the warmth, and that one, therefore, reflects on thinking, but not on affections, so is the case with sound and speech.

That thought is not something other than the form of the disorder can also be explained by speech, namely that it is not something other than the form of sound; it is also the same because the sound corresponds to the affection and the speech to the thinking, and therefore the affection sounds and the thought speaks; this can also be clearly seen when one says: Take the sound out of the speech, is there anything of speech?

Likewise: Take the disorder out of the mind, is there anything of thinking? From this, it now appears that love is the all of the wisdom, and therefore the essence of the heavens is love, and its existence is wisdom; or, which is the same thing, that the heavens "are" from Divine Love, and that they "exist" from Divine Love through Divine Wisdom; and therefore, as has been said before, there is one of the other.

For people who have had themselves vaccinated against Corona, there is a diet for sun remedies in the Lorberwerk, which helps to eliminate a weakening. The explanation of fasting in the Laodicean letter of the Lorberwerk also contains valuable information on this.
